

Young talents rank Lantmännen at the top

Lantmännen continues to be an attractive employer for the next generation of talents. In this year's survey among Young Professionals, Lantmännen achieved three top five placements.

In Karriärföretagen's survey, Lantmännen was ranked third among social science graduates and among university engineers with 1–4 years of work experience, as well as second place in the overall ranking across all categories.

– We are very proud that young academics who have recently started their careers see Lantmännen as one of the most attractive employers. I believe that the combination of the breadth of operations, values, and sustainability appeals to many, says Linda Åhman Siljemark, Employer Branding Manager, Lantmännen.

Each year, Karriärföretagen selects companies in Sweden that offer the best career and development opportunities. In addition, a survey is conducted among young professionals to determine which of the selected companies are considered the most attractive.

– With opportunities across multiple industries and a values-driven culture, we attract employees with many different backgrounds. At Lantmännen, you become part of a group where you contribute to something bigger: creating a thriving agriculture sector, strengthening Sweden's food supply, and driving the development towards a more sustainable society, says Linda Åhman Siljemark.
